Cancer of the Tongue. A Case Resembling That of Gen. Grant.

Some ten years ago I had a scrofutous sore on my right hand which gave me great troibile, and ander the old-time treatment healed up, but if had only been driven into the system by the use of potash and meroury, and in March, 1882, it broke out in my throat, and concentrated in what some of the dectors called can cer, eating through my check, destroying the roof of my mouth and upper lip then attacked my tongue, palate and lower lip, destroying the palate and under lip entirely and half my tongue, eating out to the top of my forf check bone and up to the left eye. I could not eat any solid food, but subsisted on liquids, and my tongue was so far gone I could not talk. Such was my wrotched, helpless condition the first of last October (1884), when my friends commenced giving me Swift's Specific. In less than a month the eating places stopped and bealing commenced, and the foarful aperture in my check has been closed and firmly kult ted together. A process of a new under lip is progressing finely, and the tongue, which was almost destroyed, is being recovered, and it seems that nature is supplying a new tongue. I can talk so that my friends can readily understand me, and can also eat soill food again. If any doubt these facts I would refer them to floor, John all. Trapic, State Senator of this district, and to Dr. T. S. Bradfind, of La Grange, Ga. May 14, 1885 A Case Resembling That of Gen. Grant.

cause the lovers of this delicious fruit to submit to the seductive persuasion of the stall-keeper and pay the high price askel at this early season. The peach crop is at last about exhausted. Dealars say that the season was a most profitable one. The quality was excellent and high prices were obtained. Only a few chogstones, until for table use, are to be found, and $1.25 a peek is asked for them.

The boundful supply of beautiful pears continues. There exers to be no searchy of the Barttett or Duchesse, the crop of back telug most extraordinary. Bartletts continues at 60 cents and $1 a peek; Duchesse are 50 cents a basked, a basked containing about one dozen. "Vergaliens," a delicious variety of the New York pear, are extremely tempting at 75 cents a peek. Russetts and Howell as ever are $1 a pk. Eating apples are 25 cents, a peek; choice cooking apples are 25 cents, a peek; choice cooking apples are 25 cents. Malaga grapes are 25 cents a peuk; Cencords, 5 pounds for a quarter; Rebecess 25 cents, and California tokays $1.25 a box.

Chestruis are being gathered near home and have dropped to licentia a quart. Seelless Florida oranges, the finest, are $1 a dozen; other varieties are 50 cents a dozen; up. Lemons are 25 cents, and limes 20 cents a dozen. Quinces are $0 cents a peak, and green and purple gages are 29 cents a quart. Damsons are 10 cents a quart.

VEORTABLES. Vegetables continue to improve with the excellent weather, and this week finds an almost unlimited supply of the different varieties at remarkably low prices. Corn is becoming scarce and 15 to 25 cents a dozep cars is being anked for it. Eggplants in very fine condition are 5 and 10 cents each. Cauliflower, owing to the great demand for chow-chow purposes, has advanced from 15 to 30 cents a bead. Rendy sale is found for the supply. Cucumbers are crisp and tender, but are becoming unseasonable, at 15 cents a dozen. Snap and wax or butter beams are 40 cents a peek. Lima beams in the very finest condition are 15 cents a quart. Lettuce makes a delicate salad at from 5 to 8 cents a head. Maryland cymlings or squash are there for 5 cents. Sweet polatices are the best grown in many seasons, and are in demand at 30 cents a peck. Burbanks, the best variety of the Irlsh potato, are the same, at 30 cents a peck. Rurbanks, the best variety of the Irlsh potato, are the same, at 30 cents a peck. An inferior grade for making catsup may be had for 18 cents a peck. Fall peas are the scarcest of late vegetables, and only a few can be found at 50 cents a peck. Spinach continues in excellent condition at 25 cents a peck. Water-cress, an elegant green for garnishing or salad, is 10 cents a bunch. Cabbage was never in better condition. Solid white heads are the same as from 5 to 10 cents a lead, while the large, firm, red cabbage of New York growth is 15 and 25 cents a head. Shelled string beans are 40 cents a peck. Chicoory is 5 cents a bunch or three bunches for 25 cents. Green peppers are 10 cents a dozen. Cranberries are 15 cents a quart. excellent weather, and this week finds an almost unlimited supply of the different three bunches for 25 cents. Green pappers are 10 cents a dozen. The fish stalls, as usual on Friday, were sought first by many of the persons who attended market this morning. Friday is fish day and, expectant of plenty of business, the fish dealer makes the most claborate and tempting display of his stock. Bunches of taffors, white perch and other Potomac varieties, were carefully assorted and hung on hooks. Imported lish were packed in boxes of crushed ice, while lobsters, crabs, terraplies and turtles occupied one side of the stall in abundance. Boiling rock is delicious at 15 cents a pound. Pretty silvery gray Spanish mackerel is 35 cents a pound. Boston fresh mackerel, small size, are from 10 to 25 cents as pound, and are much in demand. Pike are improving at 12 cents a pound. Pompino, one of the finest fishes that reach the market, is 40 cents a pound. Blae fish from the Jersey coast is 15 cents a pound. Halibut is delicious at 20 cents a pound. Spring turfowls 75 cents and $1.25 a pair. Spring turkey is becoming better in quality and more in demand at 16 and 18 cents a pound. Yearling ducks are 20 cents a pound. Dressed squabs always are 50 cents a pair. The game season has opened with excellent prospects, as the game stalls are abundantly stocked with all varieties. Reed birds have disappeared from this locality and those in the market are fattened in the rice fields in the South. The supply is becoming scarce, and $1.25 a dozen is being asked for them. Ortolan are also scarce at 75 cents and $1 a dozen. Biackbirds are 60 cents a dozen. Quall or partridges are now in season at $1 a pair.

Quall or partridges are now in season acts a pair.

Grouse are $1.25 a pair. Jack snipes, too, are $1.25 a pair. Woodcock are the same at $1.25 a pair. Ring neek plovers, a most delicious bird, are scarce at $3.50 a a dozen. Willett snipe are 50 cents a pair. Small yellow plovers are $2 a dozen. Bluewing ducks are 75 cents and $1 a pair. Mallards are 75 cents, spoon-bill 75 cents and $1. Widgeon is $1 and crow duck, the subordinate of all, 25 cents a pair.

MEATS,
There is no change in the quotations of meats since last week. The demand for beef and lamb continues to improve as the full advances, but the butchers' supply fall advances, but the butchers' supply never falls short of the demand. Porterhouse steaks, tender, judy and toothsome as ever, are 25 cents a pound; choice by the cut 20 cents a pound. Sirioin is 20 cents, and round, 15 cents. Lamb is prime at 20 cents a pound, the cut from the hindquarter being the best. Veal is 12½ to 20 cents, cutlets 20 to 25 and chops from 15 to 20 cents. Soup meats are 8 and 10 cents a pound. Sweetbreads are 30 and 40 cents a pair, and lamb fries 10 cents.

THE IDLE LAWYER. It was a capital hit and well deliv ered, full between the eyes. It sent the recipient, a gaudily-dressed fop, spinning into the gutter, much to the detriment of his fine apparel, and served him right for insulting an unprotected girl, whose hurried steps and timid manner betrayed her uneasiness at being alone on the street at such an

Having done his duty in the premises, and waiting to see the bespatted coxcomb pick himself up ungracefully and slink away abashed and cowed. Ned Armour turned to see what had become of his protege.

She stood trembling, as though fright and arrested her steps. Her pale face, on which the light of a neighboring lamp chanced to fall, was of surpassing beauty, and Ned being a kulght as gallant as brave, begged permission to gaman as orave, beggen permission to see her safe home.

In a sweet, gentle voice, with a slightly foreign tinge, she accepted the effer, and the two walked on together, for the most part, silently. "Will you not come in, sir?" said the girl, stopping at the door of a plain-looking house. "My father, I am sure, will wish to thank you for the kind service you have rendered. He is an invalid, and it was an errand to procure him some necessaries that took me out to night.

Ned accepted the invitation, and that was the beginning of his acquaint-ance with M. Bertrand and his charming daughter Maria.

Ned Armour was the junior of a law firm of which his uncle, Mr. Banting, was the head. He had little love for the profession, but had entered it to please his uncle, to whom he owe everything, his rearing included. It is safe to say that after the adventure just related he spent two evenings in the society of Maria and her father to one passed with Coke & Blackstone. M. Bertrand was an old soldier of the first Empire, who, with the fall of his chief, had lost all; and driven into ex-ile with his infant child, he had wanlered from country to country in the sope to mend his fortune. Now, his daughter and himself had no other de-pendence than the earnings of the for-mer, who turned to the best account she could her proficiency in music by giving private lessons. Ned would gladly have assisted his friends from his own purse had he known how to do so without giving of-fense to the proud old soldier, "I've been thinking of a wife for you," said Ned's uncle one morning, as the two sat together in the senior's private office. "So have I," replied Ned. "Ahem!" returned the uncle.

"I've picked one out for you," he

"I've picked one out for myself."

said Ned; "that is, provided I can obtain her consent." "The deuce you have!" exclaimed the head of the firm, who had always regarded the question as one within his own exclusive jurisdiction. There is no knowing to what a pitch the discussion would have reached but for the entrance of two gentlemen, who came to consult Mr. Banting.

A Frenchman, a stranger, it seemed had died suddenly while on a visit to this city some years before, leaving a large sum of money. One of the two gentlemen present had been appointed trustee of the fund, and the other claimed to be next of kin to the ceased, whose cousin he asserted himself to be.

"The deceased spoke of having a brother," said the trustee, "in search of whom he was traveling."
"Yes, his brother Antoine," said the other, "who absconded from this country years ago, and of whose death I nave ample proofs.

The papers were submitted to Mr. Banting, who promised to examine them and give his opinion next day, at which time, if everything was regu-lar, the money was to be turned over to the claimant.

It wasn't often that Ned paid much attention to the business of the office, but the mention of certain names dur-ing the colloquy caused him to prick up his ears while seemingly busy with the morning paper, and five minutes later he was running at full speed to the house of his friends, the Bertrands. At the appointed hour next morning

At the appointed hour next morning the same two gentlemen came to hear Mr. Banting's decision. Ned, as be-fore, had the morning paper before him, but kept a sharp car turned. These papers appear to be all right," observed Mr. Banting, "I have scru-tinized them carefully and find nothing

Then it only remains to pay over the money, I suppose," said the heir expectant, rubbing his hands.

'Nothing more," replied Mr. Bant-The trustee produced his accounts, The trustee produced his accounts, showing the sum on hand, which had been largely enhanced by accruing in-terest, and was beginning to draw a check for the amount, when Ned Armour threw aside his paper and strode "Don't be too fast " he exclaimed. It was the first time Ned had ever interfered in a business consultation, and his uncle looked up surprised.

his uncle looked up surprised.

"Why, what do you know about it?"
asked the latter.

"I've a witness in my private room
I think you'd better examine before proceeding further," answered Ned.

"Wait a moment and I'll bring him."
Ned stepped out and returned immediately excepting an infirm old man diately, escorting an infirm old man, whose eye flashed as it fell on the cowering countenance of the would-be the old man, proudly, "the brother and heir of him on whose fortune this base wretch seeks to lay his lawless—grasp. It was this villian, when the star of my illustrious chief went down at Waterloo. who, through perjury and falsohood, drove me into exile, and received, as the reward of his perfuly, my entire wealth. The proofs he now presents are as false as those he manufactured then, but I have documents here which will leave no doubt as to my right." Will leave no doubt as to my right.

The false heir did not remain to see inspected the packet of papers which the old man presented. Suffice it to say, they were found in all respects correct. Marie Bertrand was now a match for the wealthiest man in the land, and when Ned told his uncle that

The Internal Machinery. Even when we go to sleep, the compli-cated apparatus of the inner man is continually at work. Heart, lungs, liver, kid-neys and all, keep at work from birth until neys and all, keep at work from birth until death. How important it is that all these should be in perfect order! Let any of them run down, or let the blood become impoverished, and the rusult is disease and decay. But Brown's Iron Bitters is the sure restorative. A Successful Excursion Season The local steamboat inspectors of Balti-more have just finished a calculation as to the number of persons carried on steamboat the number of persons carried on steamboat excursions from Baltimore and Washing-ton. The total number was 648,463, of which only 120,000 went from Washington. The season was the most successful ever known. There was not an accident involv-ing loss of life or damage to property. The strict attention and excellent judgment of the inspectors had much to do with the safety of the trips, as they prevented over-crowding.
